New review article policy

In addition to adopting a new policy on special thematic issues, International Political Science Review has a new policy regarding review articles. Prospective authors should write to the IPSR editors at ipsr.journal@gmail.com specifying a theme, its significance and the list of books to be covered (minimum three). Review articles should generally be circa 3,000-6,000 words and compare, contrast and evaluate different approaches to the theme or different applications of the same approach. The reviewer should engage in depth with one or more books that reflect given approaches.

Proposals for review articles on emerging or contested areas of the discipline are particularly welcome. Once proposals have been accepted, IPSR will obtain review copies of books, if needed. The completed article will be subject to review.
