In December 2008, at the Thames Valley University bookshop, students and academics gathered to congratulate Ursula Smartt on the launch of her most recent textbook. Law for Criminologists explains the basic principles of the law to students of Criminology, enabling them to grasp the fundamental framework behind their subject and to develop a full understanding of issues in criminal justice. Here are just some of the pictures from the event, where a good time was had by all.